Please Turn Over

- Mr. W. Newman, Assistant Director for Public Services, announces that due to the delays in the completion of the Central Library building and to the increase in the university enrolment, the Library is attempting to make accommodations for service in the present Steacie Science Library. Therefore, during the summer months there will be some inconvenience to the users. They will be trying to increase the seating capacity and also to increase the stack capacity for their growing collections. They ask your forbearance in these difficult times. Any future changes in the Library will be announced in the Daily Bulletin.

The Library is beginning to catalogue and classify its periodical holdings (science periodicals are catalogued but not classified). Due to this, runs of periodicals will be temporarily removed from the shelves for the cataloguing and classification. If you are unable to locate a desired periodical, please check with the Circulation or Reference Departments. As a new service, they will be listing all the newly-acquired periodicals in their New Titles Alerting System. They will automatically extend this service to all those presently subscribing to this service. If at present you are not subscribing and would like to receive it, please contact one of the bibliographers.

- A lady's jewel case which was found on campus can be picked up by the owner in Room 102, Physical Plant Workshops.
