* West Campus Landscaping

The Department of Physical Plant reports that work commenced August 28th on the initial phase of the West Campus Landscape Development Program as projected in the York University Master Plan. The work undertaken at this time includes the extension of the south-west portion of Fraser Drive to the east-west service road, excavation for the upper lake which forms a drainage basin for storm water collected from the campus proper, the construction of a small dam and weir structure to retain the water and control the lake level, construction of a sluiceway and culvert structure to carry the outflow under the west section of Fraser Drive and the grading, sodding and seeding of the balance of the area bounded by the Library Access Road on the north, Fraser Drive on the west, the future college complex on the south and Osgoode Hall, the Administrative Studies and Scott Central Library buildings on the east. The area involved amounts to some 10 acres including the 1.6 acre lake. Surplus excavated material will be deposited in low lying areas on the west side of Fraser Drive preparatory to future development in that area. This project is the culmination of many months of detailed planning carried out by the University's engineering and landscaping consultants, the Arboretum Committee and the Departments of Campus Planning and Physical Plant. This work has been integrated with the development of the York Campus Arboretum, an extensive program of tree planting being actively implemented in consultation with the Arboretum Committee under the chairmanship of Dr. M. Boyer. Consultations have also been held with the Metropolitan Toronto and Region Conservation Authority responsible for Pioneer Village and the development of the Black Creek Conservation area in order to ensure co-ordinated development of the west campus - Black Creek area.

* Energy-Environment Studies - In order to ascertain the feasibility of establishing at York a University-wide Energy-Environment Studies group, Dr. Arthur C. Johnson would like to have conversations with any faculty member so interested. Discussions at this time, of course, would only be informal and very preliminary in nature. A need is envisioned for some means of integrating and consolidating the teaching and research efforts of the York community in respect of energy matters particularly where environmental factors are involved. Currently many problem areas exist in the energy-environment field that require consideration from the viewpoint of not only science and technology, but also, economics, public policy, law, etc. Dr. Johnson can be contacted at 667-3040 or 447-8826
